

Central and Eastern European (V4) Corporate Governance Conference

Wednesday, 12 March 2014, 13.00

The Ministry for National Economy of Hungary and EY (Ernst & Young LLP) cordially invite you to a conference on Wednesday, 12 March 2014 at the Ministry for National Economy, 1051 Budapest, 2-4 Jozsef nador ter (Entrance from Dorottya Street).

The Visegrad countries (V4), consisting of the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland and Slovakia, work together in the Central and Eastern European (CEE) region to encourage closer cooperation between them and with other countries around the world. These countries have much in common. They are all members of the OECD. Their exchange of information and building common relationships with investors and governments are of mutual benefit.

This conference aims to contribute the perspective of CEE (V4) countries on the proposed changes to the OECD Principles of Corporate Governance, and examine how these principles can be applied in the CEE region in a way that would positively impact foreign investment.

Members of the first panel will discuss in greater detail how corporate governance influences foreign investment decisions. They will also address how companies in the Visegrad countries should respond to the needs of the institutional investor community to better attract foreign investment.

A second panel will provide an analysis of corporate governance and the financial crisis, focusing on value creation and growth. The panel will also discuss the current work of the OECD on corporate governance issues including its plans to review the OECD Principles of Corporate Governance.

Attendance at the conference is free of charge. The presentations will be held in English, with simultaneous translation provided.
